EXECUTION OF JAMES STEPHENS.—On Friday morning last, between nine and ten o'clock, JAMES STEPHENS, for the murder of his wife SOPHIA, was hung in New York city, at the Tombs. STEPHENS made a few remarks, to the following effect: "I stand here as a sinner, but through the blood of Christ I am saved. I do not stand upon any merits of my own, but upon the merits of my Redeemer, who died for me. I rely upon Christ."—While the rope was being adjusted, he exclaimed: "Be quick, be quick!" The last words he was heard to utter were "Lord Jesus Christ—"

COSMOPOLITAN ART UNION PRIZES DRAWN IN WISCONSIN:—We find from the list published in the New York Herald of the 2d inst., that there were only four prizes drawn for Wisconsin, at the recent drawing of the Cosmopolitan Art Union. They were as follows:

Study of Trees in the Catskill, Free Press Eau Claire, Wis.

New York Bay, James W. Vail, Ozaukee.

River Scenery, Rockland Lake, W. G. Main, Madison, Wis.

Night and Morning; Thorwalsden, A. C. Lathrop, Markesan, Wis.

PRODUCE FROM LA CROSSE.—The La Crosse Union & Democrat gives the following table of shipments from the La Crosse Depot, by the Milwaukee and Minnesota Railroad Company, during the past month:

Wheat	82,300	bus.
Oats	6,961	"
Corn	1,348	"
Barley	640	"
Pork	569,188	"
Hides	23,850	"
Butter	8,042	"
Ginseng	5,140	"
Merchandise	56,072	"
Sundries	59,570	"
Beer	46	bbls.

AN IMPORTANT REFORM.—The Mayor of Philadelphia recommends the abolition of the voluntary fire system. The department is too large, and the elements of hand engine and steam engine service are irreconcilable. He proposes that the extinguishment of fires be entrusted to the police, all alarm by bells discontinued, and the expense of extinguishing fires be defrayed by the fire insurance companies.

BROKE THROUGH THE ICE.—The Winona Republican, of Saturday last, says the down stage from St. Paul broke through the ice on the river on that day, when near that city. The horses were doused in all over, and the forward part of the stage followed after. The passengers escaped without even getting wet, among whom was GEO. L. BECKER, Esq., and family.

THE election of GOV. PENNINGTON, as Speaker, it is suggested, is an act of retributive justice. Twenty years ago, the House of Representatives rejected and turned away gentlemen who had claims to seats, supported by documents bearing his signature as Governor, and the broad seal of his State.—He has now been called upon to preside over the body, whose predecessors repudiated his acts. "It is a long road that has no turn."

NEW OIL MILL.—A mill has just been completed, and the machinery is now being put up, on the Calumet Plank Road, in the town of Sheboygan, for the purpose of manufacturing lubricating and burning oil from rape seed. Two enterprising Germans, Messrs. B. SCHWARTING & G. SCHLICHTING are the proprietors. They intend to have it running in about two weeks.

In the five theological seminaries of the Presbyterian churches (Old School), viz:—Princeton, Alleghany, Union, Columbia and Chicago, there is an aggregate of 457 students against 416 last year. The largest number, 170, is at Princeton; the smallest, 18, is at Chicago.

THE "GREAT WESTERN JOURNAL" has "discontinued its come." We used to love to contemplate the neat heading wrapped up in scroll like a solitary grape in a grape vine, and the transparent paper—hardly stout enough to carry so much literature, but which enabled one to read both sides of the sheet at once. But it has "gone up," and here is the way the Grand Rapids Eagle "takes on" about it:

"Where is the Great Western Journal?—Where, O where is the celebrated London Medical Lecturer—the distinguished Boston preacher—the eloquent Grand Rapids advocate—the great English wit and humorist—the man who gave private lectures to the ladies at Muskegon, and came out of the house at a place made for the light to come in—the Editor—the Doctor—Thomas D. Worrall—where is he? This great journal, like the fellow's veal, has "sort o' gin out," from a natural weakness brought on by over dosing; its own physician has either physicked it to death, or let it die for want of medicine. Its death, if dead it is, may, however, have been caused by exhaustion, in trying to "spread all over the West," thus spreading itself out. Thomas, come home. The patrons of your Journal want to see you, or rather their favorite (?) paper. Those afflicted Lansing people can get along without you for a short time, but your Journal cannot. If you don't come soon, they will be compelled to send to your publication office at Milwaukee or Janesville for their paper. Again we say; come home.

THE BROOKLYN CATASTROPHE.—The New York papers bring us the particulars of the Brooklyn catastrophe, in which five lives were lost by the explosion of a steam boiler in the hat manufactory of AMES & MOULTON. The Times of Friday 3d says:

The building is a complete wreck, and the firemen are busily engaged in removing the ruins, as it is supposed that some bodies are still buried beneath the pile. The building was entirely new, and the factory had only been in operation one week.

The boiler which exploded was new, and made by Woodruff & Beach, Hartford.

The list of killed, as far as learned is as follows:

Joseph McClockin.
Wm Eastman, Engineer, from Hartford.
John Werner, Foreman.
Theodore Higby, aged 16.

Injured, viz.

John Hill, spine hurt.
John Mulholland, body scalded and cannot live; taken to hospital.
Aaron Van Voris, leg broken; taken to hospital.
Andrew Orf, injured in the back.
E. W. Smith, injured severely.
John Farrell, badly scalded.
John Callihan badly hurt. Sent to hospital.

The loss on building will be $12,000; machinery, $10,000; stock, $15,000.

The House Committees.

NEW YORK, Feb. 4—6 P. M.

The Herald's Washington correspondence assigns the chairmanship of the leading committees of the House as follows: Ways and Means, Sherman; Territories, Grow; Foreign Affairs, Corwin; Elections, Wilson; Post Office, Haskin; Indian Affairs, Colfax; Commerce, Carter, of N. Y., or Washburne, of Ill; Invalid Pensions, Fenton; Revolutionary Claims, Dawes; Military, Curtis; Engraving, Adrain; Judiciary, Tappan or Stevens of Pa; District of Columbia, E. Joy Harris; Naval Affairs, Morse; Library, Pettit. He says the committees will not be announced before Thursday.

DESTRUCTIVE FIRE.—On Tuesday morning, at about the hour of three o'clock, the barns on the farm of Ira Merrill, about four miles east of this city, on the South Ypsilanti road, were discovered to be on fire. The barns were on the farm lately occupied by Mr. M. M. Merrill, and now occupied by S. M. Dowzer, a half-brother of Merrill. The flames fed upon the combustible material, and spread so rapidly that it was impossible to get the horses from the stable, or even to release the cattle and sheep from the yards. In general terms the losses may be enumerated as follows:—Two large barns with sheds connecting and adjoining, estimated to be worth at least $2,000. In the barns and sheds were four horses, 300 bushels of oats, 20 tons of hay, a quantity of wheat, a thrashing machine, mower and reaper, harnesses, and all other farming utensils, not an item of which was saved. The horses were valuable ones. 78 sheep were also burned to death, and others injured, and a number of young cattle were destroyed and others badly burned. The cattle and sheep were yarded on the east side of the barns, and as the wind blowed fiercely from the west all efforts to relieve them were unavailing.—Ann Arbor (Mich.) Argus.

AT THE CONCLUSION of the year 1859, the Emperor of Russia appointed a Military Tribunal to try the individuals charged with robbery, or negligence in supplying the army of the South and the army in the Crimea with provisions during the war. The tribunal has just closed its sittings, and has passed a severe sentence. A great number of individuals employed in the commissariat have been severely dealt with. Major General Zatler, Commissary General, and Colonel Mosjenski have been deprived of their commissions, their decorations, their titles of nobility, and are to be incorporated with the army as private soldiers. Councilors Wordasowski, Brodecki Wit, and Beetchebroff have been sentenced to a similar punishment. Councilors Wojeienowski, Orlowski, Akinin, and Tchowoff have been deprived of their appointments and imprisoned in a house of correction.

THE following anecdote is related by a London correspondent, as illustrating Macaulay's unwavering monopoly of conversation: "He once spent a week at a country vicarage as the guest of Sidney Smith. 'Well, and how did you get on with him?' asked a friend. 'Get on—I did not get on at all,' said the wit. 'He talked all day, and I have no doubt he talked all night; but I went to bed as usual, and thank God, I slept soundly, only when I got up in the morning I found Macaulay had at it still. I took my revenge, however, in my own way, for when he was leaving I went to the door of his chaise, and after bidding him good bye, said, 'I admit it.' 'Admit what?' he exclaimed. 'That you are the greatest man in England.'"

VIRGINIA is not satisfied with the victims she has offered up to appease her outraged honor. A demand has been made upon the Governor of Iowa, for the surrender of Coppie. Hearing of this demand, Mr. C. has gone to Canada to avoid arrest. He has the consumption and had gone to his former home in Iowa to die with his mother. It was hoped by his friends that the last few days remaining of his life, might be spent undisturbed among those who love him so much, and whose gentle care might have eased him softly into the grave now yawning for him. But it seems that this is not to be.

FEMALE FIREMEN.—At a late fire in Leavenworth, Kansas, says the Times of that city, a large number of ladies turned out to the assistance of the firemen. So well did they work that the flames were finally subdued, preventing a large and disastrous conflagration. The people of Leavenworth are loud in their praises of the intrepidity, perseverance and skill of the ladies, and think that on future occasions, should such unhappily occur, they can rely upon this new "fire brigade."

THE PRIZE-FIGHTERS.—John Morrissey went into the Superior Court yesterday, Judge Masten presiding, and plead not guilty to the charge of having set on foot the Price and Kelly prize fight had in Canada, and guilty to the count which charged him with being present at it. His disposition of the indictment was agreed to, but sentence was suspended.—Buffalo Com Ad.

PAYMENT OF BONDS.—The Michigan Central Railroad Co. give notice that they will pay, on and after March first, the bonds which mature on the first of April, 1860, together with the accrued interest up to the time of payment. By arrangement with the Treasurer a limited number of these may be exchanged for bonds due 1863, at a small discount.

TWO EXTRAORDINARILY LARGE NUGGETS have been produced from a quartz in Australia. The first, the largest up to that discovered in the colony, and weighing 1472 ounces, was eclipsed by the second, which weighed no less than 1522 ounces.

THE CITY.

The Other World.

FOOTFALLS ON THE BOUNDARIES OF ANOTHER WORLD, by R. D. OWEN. Philadelphia: J. B. LIPPINCOTT & CO.

However startling the assertion may appear in print, we will here hazard it—that few men have lived, without at some time being conscious of doubts regarding the immortality of the soul. It may have been while regarding the apparent decay of physical and mental powers in an aged friend, who seemed to be approaching the grave a complete wreck of both mind and matter, or it may have crept in while in the contemplation of insanity, or any "fact" which would seem to make the higher powers of man dependant on organic structure. How intense became the gloom of "the hereafter" at that moment!

True it is that the broad and beautiful faith of Christianity will rebound and spring exultant from the shadows of mortality. If we are true to ourselves we will "smell the rose above the mould;" but the question is: How many will be untrue to themselves, and in the absence of tangible, sensible evidence, sink into the slough of materialism? How many are there whose cry is, "Lord help thou mine unbelief!" who are groping in darkness for material light, bewildered by dreamy argumentation?

If materialism, not to say scepticism, is too frequently the result of "natural darkness" how ought we to hail the illuminations of science? Throwing as they do their lustre on the great truths of Revelation. It may be right to say that all men should believe implicitly the declarations of holy writ in relation to that bourne from whence no traveller returns. But do they?

In supposing that mankind need sensible demonstrations of the truth of what they are schooled to regard as true, it is with enthusiasm that we turn to modern science and hear it bearing evidence for revelation. It is to Geology that we are indebted for the only refutation of HUME's famous proposition of a progressive creation. Men need no longer

"——take the high priori road,
And reason downwards till they doubt of God."

It will be found as the world grows older that there are voices in the air as well as in the bowels of the earth and that every science, when rightly understood, is but a torch-bearer of truth.

Pneumatology is, comparatively, an unexplored region—we approach it hesitatingly, but when we come to investigate or even to contemplate—what is the conclusion of the whole matter? Simply, as Mr. OWEN has summed it up in his first postulate, "That, when death prostrates the body, the spirit remains not slumbering in the grave, beside mouldering flesh and bone, but enters at once upon a new and active phase of life."

It is something, to have drawn this conclusion from another world—as it were, and though the eye of faith may see nothing new in the announcement, it is a summing up of considerable importance in the world at large. We think there will be no evading this conclusion in reading "Footfalls."

The narratives all have an air of authenticity, which gives them weight; many of them the reader will be familiar with, as, for instance, the account of the strange occurrences in the Wesley family; but though the author sketches out a theory of Hades, he neither twists his evidence to favor it, nor elaborates the theory itself to any great extent. The prevailing idea of the work, or at least the idea which will predominate in the reader's mind on closing it, was expressed by the poet ROGERS many years ago:

"Oft may the spirits of the dead descend,
To watch the silent slumbers of a friend;
To hover round his evening walks unseen,
And hold sweet converse on the dusky green—
To hail the spot where once their friendship grew,
And Heaven and nature opened to their view.
Oft when he trims his cheerful hearth and sees
A smiling circle emulous to please,
There may these gentle guests delight to dwell,
And bless the scene they loved in life so well."

This is a pleasant idea, and one which, though as old as society, has never been thoroughly divested of superstitious horrors. Hitherto, the subject has either been written down with much philosophy, or imbued with so much of the ghostliness of the charnel house, as to be disgusting. In this work we have plain statements. Logical, if not convincing deductions, and a little, it must be admitted, which is inexplicable, notwithstanding the plain statements. Mr. OWEN has held high and honorable positions in this country, and a great part of his time has been devoted to the obtaining and verifying of the narratives which he now gives to the world. The volume is tersely written; the language is forcible and the statements succinct without being meagre.

FEBRUARY.—NUMA POMPILIUS established this month. According to OVID all objects which were thought to have the effect of moral purgation in the religious ceremonials of that people were called Februa.—Ceremonials of this kind took place at this season; hence the name of the month. We are not of opinion that wash-women flourish any better in this month than at other times, in fact we know of one who says she is suffering severely for the want of a quarter of a dollar. We presume JUPITER took a shower bath in company with JUNO in February and GAMBRINUS whose fete, it will be remembered, needed purifying, took an especial ablution.

THE Free Democrat says of DJOKENS' works:

"They are peculiarly and purely works of imagination. His characters, and particularly those that make any impression, and leave any memory, are all monsters of either virtue or vice, or gross caricatures or exaggerations. Thackeray is the novelist who chrystalizes real life, and his popularity, and that of his works, compared with Dickens and his works, shows the estimate public opinion puts on their respective merits."

We hardly agree with our cotemporary, "Poor Joe" and "Martin Chuzzlewit," "Mark Tapley," "Esther" in Bleak House, and scores of other characters that we could name, are "chrystalizations" of real life, the counterpart of which one may meet every day.

KNICKERBOCKER MAGAZINE FOR FEBRUARY.—We have received this favorite, and we find in it a continuation of the sketches on the Hudson, among which will be found a beautiful description of Sleepy Hollow and environs. Among the readable papers in this number is one entitled "A Day in the Dead Letter Office," which will interest almost everybody. The "Chat with Readers" is as gossipy as ever.

A DONATION.—The Turner Society of this city have generously donated to the Soup House, the sum of twenty-eight dollars, this being the proceeds of a festival held on the anniversary of TOM PAINE's birth-day. They have turned their talents to good account, for which the lady managers, in behalf of the poor, return their sincere thanks.

CALEB WALL wants to rent, or sell a house and lot on Jackson street, very cheap. Read his advertisement. He also has one and a half acres, half a mile from the city limits, all enclosed, and would make a beautiful garden and home, which he will sell at a great bargain.

YOUNG MEN'S CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION.—The regular monthly meeting of this Association will be held this evening in their room, at half past seven o'clock, when an essay will be read, to be followed as usual by a discussion.

Common Sense vs. Delusion—Science vs. Self Deception.

For the Daily Sentinel.

The air in a dissecting room, where the body of a drunkard is being examined, smells like that which greets your nostrils in a wholesale liquor store. On removing the bony covering of his brain the exhalation of ardent spirits is strongly manifested to the olfactories of bystanders. A man was brought dead into Westminster Hospital, having died from drinking a quart of gin for a wager.—He was immediately examined and within the lateral ventricles of the brain was found a considerable quantity of limpid fluid, distinctly impregnated with gin, both to the sense of smell and the test of inflamability. Elsewhere, the fluid of the lateral ventricles of the brain of inebriates has frequently been found to exhale the odor of whiskey, and, upon a candle being applied to it in a spoon, to burn with a luminent blue flame!

When alcohol is once in the system, it rushes, by some strange affinity, directly to the brain. The seat of mind and memory—"the dome of thought, the palace of the soul"—seems to possess an irresistible attraction for this subtle agent which poisons that it flies to.

Many examinations of men and numberless experiments with animals establish beyond a shadow of doubt that alcohol is a brain-poison, and that its presence in the cerebral matter is almost simultaneous with its introduction into the stomach.

Nearly all poisons have a local action in the system. Arsenic, for instance, inflames the mucous membrane of the alimentary passages. Oil of tobacco paralyzes the heart.—Lead fastens first upon the wrist; manganese upon the liver; strychnine upon the spinal chord. (At the mention of strychnine, one can scarcely fail to reflect how ingeniously modern whiskey is made to be two-fold poisonous. It contains on an average fifty-six per cent of alcohol—a perfectly fatal cerebral poison, as we shall more fully see—and also a considerable addition of strychnine—another not more certain though less common poison, which attacks the spinal chord. May not this composition of their beverage account not only for the addled brains, but also for the weak and limpsy back-bones of the habitual consumers of this double poison of whiskey?

Alcohol is governed by this general law of local action; but what renders it the worst of all, it attacks directly the citadel of intelligence, the throne of reason. When, therefore, oh! brave young man, you boldly march into your favorite saloon, about eleven o'clock, and take your regular tod, you simply and deliberately inject a deadly poison into your very brain! Should you, as soon as you have paid your dime, fall dead, and your friends, curious to learn the cause of your sudden demise, cause a post mortem, the examination would show that the only thing in your brain that made you want it, to wit: the fuddling or exhilerating quality, namely, the alcohol, was already in its real unchangeable form, working its "effect," and your ruin in the ventricles of your foolish, deluded brain. Why, my dear sir, "intoxicated" means "poisoned." The word is derived from the Latin, toxicum, poison. "Toxical" is is defined poisonous, and intoxication properly signifies the state of being poisoned.

You do not voluntarily put your hand in the fire. You would not permit another to sere your forehead with a hot iron; but you, of your own accord, deliberately pour into your brain that which poisons the most delicate and the most vital part of your system.

You ask how this poison affects the brain. The processes of its action upon that organ will be next considered.

DASHAWAY.

CRINOLINE TRIUMPHANT.—If her Majesty the Queen of fashion and of France, ever did undertake, as has been alleged, to collapse the balloon herself had inflated—in other words to banish crinoline from high circles of society, after the delicate and ingenious purpose of its introduction had been subserved, she has experienced, it seems, a signal discomfiture and failure. The hooped skirt is in its very nature rebellious and defiant, and it swells in indignant refusal to obey the decree for its suppression. The London Illustrated Times says that in spite of the repeated predictions to the contrary, the leading ladies of Paris evince no symptoms of any intention to discard either their crinoline or steel hoops. "The newest ball dresses are covered with masses of elaborate trimming, which have the effect of augmenting even the magnitude of their actual dimensions. Skirts multiplied one over another, or ornamented with immense bouquets." The Home Journal, our American authority in matters of fashionable taste, and "high art" in dress, says: "The latest and most authentic advices, received since the first of January, from the courts of Europe, state that hoops not only continue in much favor, but their popularity is essentially increased, especially since the French Empress has, for weighty reasons, expressed a desire that they should remain in vogue. All American ladies, who consult taste, comfort, health and good sense, would not dispense with them on any account. A slight alteration in the shape of the skirt is the only change at all apparent. They have become, we perciere, a trifle more moderate in dimensions, noticeable particularly in the upper part of the skirt—the hoops in the lower portion having suffered little diminution."

MERCHANTS AND TRADERS' INSURANCE COMPANY.—ANNUAL ELECTION.—The annual election of the above company, took place yesterday afternoon, and resulted in the re-election of the following Board:

DIRECTORS.

Sidney L. Rood,	Hiram Mabbett,
Andrew Mitchell,	G. D. Dousman,
Truman Hibbard,	E. D. Holton,
Chester Steele,	Fred. Layton,
Wm. Young,	Geo. C. Stevens,
M. S. Nichols,	Ben. Bagnall,
O. W. Gunnison,	J. T. Vaughn.

UNITED STATES INSURANCE CO.—ANNUAL ELECTION.—At the annual election of the above Insurance Co., held at their office yesterday forenoon, Messrs. G. D. DOUSMAN, S. S. DAGGETT and DANIEL WELLS, Jr., were elected in the place of the three retiring Directors. The board now consists of the following members:

DIRECTORS.

J. A. Heifenstein,	Moses Kneeland,
Samuel Hale,	H. L. Palmer,
E. Sanderson,	Solomon Adler,
S. S. Daggett,	Geo. D. Dousman,
	Daniel Wells, Jr.

COMMERCIAL INS. CO.—ANNUAL ELECTION. The annual election of the above Company took place yesterday afternoon, and resulted in the re-election of the following Board of Directors:

T. W. Goodrich,	Lester Sexton,
J. A. Dutcher,	G. Bremer,
R. P. Elmore,	J. G. Inbusch,
S. T. Hooker,	C. T. Bradley,
J. J. Tallmadge,	M. W. Clarke.

ALARM OF FIRE.—The alarm of fire, for the Third District, between 12 and 1 o'clock yesterday, was caused by a burning chimney, in the frame building on the corner of Milwaukee and Chicago streets. The chimney burst from the heat and some of the woodwork in the house took fire, but a few pailsful of water extinguished the flames. Damage trifling.

PUFF—PUFF—PUFFING.—WHICH IS ALL RIGHT.—Insurance agents in our city take pains to let the public know that the companies they represent pay up losses. We presume if they did not, it won't be known quick enough. OGDEN & WALL are agents for four good companies east, viz.: The "Springfield" and "Massasoit" of Springfield, Mass.; "Connecticut" and "Merchants" of Hartford, Conn. They have met with losses in this city and paid them promptly, without the agent making any fuss about it. Reference to the annual statement is sufficient for all business men. Risks taken as low as any other companies that stand as high, can be obtained at OGDEN & WALL's office, corner of East Water and Michigan streets.

MUNICIPAL COURT, Feb. 6—Daniel Worth, drunk and disorderly; penalty $3 and costs, or 15 days in jail.

Joseph Schaffer, drunk; penalty $1 and costs, or 5 days in jail.

Ernst Prasser, assault and battery; continued to 7th inst. at 9 a. m.

John Richards, assault and battery; fined $5 and costs. To stand committed until paid.

Jacob Kirsch, assault and battery. Settled by paying costs taxed.

LOST.—Left on the seat in one of the cars of the Milwaukee and Mississippi Railroad at Madison, on Monday forenoon, Jan. 30th, a Printed Blank Receipt Book, wrapped in an old newspaper, with my printed card on the outside. THE SENTINEL.

DAILY, TRI-WEEKLY & WEEKLY.

RUFUS KING, EDITOR.

TUESDAY MORNING, FEB. 7, 1860.

Surrender, Indeed!

The Sentinel speaks of the surrender of Democrats to Know-Nothingism. Is the Sentinel determined to become notorious for equivocation? Does it not know that Smith, had he not disclaimed all Know-Nothingism, might have been elected? Dare it deny that he did disclaim it in Congress?—News, of Sunday.

Certainly the SENTINEL dares deny that Mr. SMITH disclaimed all Know-Nothingism in Congress. He made no disclaimer whatsoever, but, in obedience to the injunctions of his K.N. friends, maintained a politic silence pending the ballot for Speaker. Mr. SMITH, as the News well knows and will not dispute, was regularly nominated for Speaker by the Know-Nothings in caucus, was supported by them in a body and in the last ballot received the vote of every Democrat in the House but three. Only three out of the whole number stood fast by their party and principles and refused to surrender to the Know-Nothings. All the rest, under the appeals and manipulations of a few leaders, who are ready to sacrifice any and everything for the sake of success, laid down their arms, trailed their flag and marched, like a flock of sheep, into the "Know-Nothing" camp. And there they had the satisfaction of discovering that this shameful surrender of principle and position, this cool, ungrateful desertion of the foreign-born electors, without whose help they could not carry a single Congressional District in the Free States, availed them just nothing. SMITH was defeated, in spite of the Democratic and Know-Nothing coalition, and Governor PENNINGTON, a stanuch Republican and true man, presides over the House of Representatives.

The Officers of the House.

The Republicans having followed up their election of Speaker with the choice, by an increased majority, of Clerk and Sergeant-at-Arms, the News is at great pains to show that it is not much of a victory, after all. Inasmuch as the Republicans are entirely content with the result, we are quite willing that the News should extract what comfort it can from the consideration that Gov. PENNINGTON "is not a Republican," that Mr. FORNEY "is a Douglas Democrat" and that Mr. HOFFMAN "is a well-known Know-Nothing." But in justice to the Speaker elect we copy and commend to our inquiring neighbors of the News what the Newark Mercury, an uncompromising Republican journal, published in the city where Mr. PENNINGTON resides, has to say about that gentleman's political status and sympathies:

"Naturally a moderate and conservative politician, combining the qualities of a gentleman of the old school with the firmness of a man of principle, Governor Pennington is as decided a Republican as John Sherman himself. His convictions are clear, positive and unmistakable. His experience in public service, his familiarity with the general rules of parliamentary business, his thorough impartiality and fairness, and above all the thoroughbred courtesy and dignity of the true gentleman would render him if chosen, a model presiding officer. We trust that the ballot of to-day may prove that he is the united choice of the Republicans, and that he will receive sufficient strength from other quarters to elect him. It is understood that the votes of all the New Jersey members may be thus concentrated, and we have confidence to believe that upon a contest between him and Mr. Smith of North Carolina, whom we regard as his strongest opponent, the latter will be beaten.

It is proper for us to say that the election of Governor Pennington to this honorable and responsible post would be in the highest degree gratifying to his constituents, and to the hosts of personal friends who have always rallied around him. His popularity among us is based upon the intrinsic excellence of the man, and upon the finely-toned political opinions which he has always entertained. We have that thorough confidence in him which asks no pledges, desires no avowals, and which is the result of a long life of public service in the State, during which not a shadow or stain has rested upon him. The Republicans in Congress may rest assured that in him they will have a presiding officer, whom no temptation will swerve, and no intimidation deter, from an honest discharge of his duties."

GEN QUITMAN ON DOUGLAS.—The Southern Democratic papers are publishing the following letter, written by the late General QUITMAN, of Mississippi, to show where Senator DOUGLAS stood in 1856, and how irreconcilable were the opinions which he held then with the sentiments that he avows and maintains now:

WASHINGTON, March 24, 1856.

MY DEAR SIR: * * * * I believe the Northern Democracy are sounder and more reliable on the slavery question than they ever have been. The Kansas bill has driven off all the compromisers, and left those that remain no alternative but a full vindication of our whole rights. I believe, therefore, that they prefer a bold, ultra Southerner to a renegade.

In a short conversation with Douglas yesterday, he said to me that what he most feared was that timid Southern men would fall back.

I shall be content with Buchanan, and will sustain Pierce, if nominated. It is also my interest to be noncommittal; but when I write to an old friend like yourself, I will be frank. My preference is for Douglas. He is bold, fearless and self-reliant. Were he elected he would be President. He would not come into office with a body guard of old fogies and politicans, ready to seize upon all the offices. He is true to the South. He demands not only the use and enjoyment of the common territory for their property, but insists upon its protection there. To him we are indebted for the Kansas bill, which now presents the point of contract. He is the true representative of this principle, and opposes the abominable principle of Squatter Sovereignty. * * * *

Your friend,
J. A. QUITMAN.

AN ADMINISTRATION HOWL.—Mr. BUCHANAN'S organ sets up a most doleful howl over the votes of Messrs. ADRAIN and REYNOLDS, Anti-Lecompton Democrats, for PENNINGTON, a Northern Oppositionist, in preference to SMITH, a Southern Oppositionist. RIGGS subsequently did the same. It says:

Mr. Adrain and Mr. Reynolds need not lay the flattering unction to their souls that they can escape one iota of the punishment which they would have received had they voted for Mr. Sherman, by voting for Mr. Pennington.

* * * *

If Adrain had one spark of sincerity or shame in his composition he would have voted for Mr. Smith. But he did not, because he has always desired the success of the Black Republican party. He would have voted for Sherman had the Black Republicans not been forced to abandon him; and in voting for Pennington yesterday he has exposed himself so that they who may read that from the first he has been playing an ignoble game; and that he was always ready to place in the Speaker's chair one who entertains principles subversive of the Constitution and laws of his country, and calculated to plunge the Union in anarchy and civil war.

TIME-BALL AT NEW YORK.—The Scientific American, of last week, says, that a Time-Ball is to be erected on the top of the Custom House at New York, and will be elevated to such a height as to be seen from vessels in the bay. It will be secured by a trip catch on a pole, which will be detached by an electro-magnet every day at noon exactly, when the ball will descend. The electro-magnet will be operated by an electric wire from the Dudley Observatory at Albany, 150 miles distant.

OPENED LETTERS.—We are acquainted with parties in this city having relatives residing in the Southern States, who hardly ever receive a letter which has not been opened after being sealed. Private correspondence is violated by Democratic postmasters, the sworn officials of Government, on suspicion that it is "incendiary." Newspapers from the North, sent by one friend to another in the South, are intercepted and destroyed, and letters, also, are frequently served in the same way. This is nothing short of despotism Democrats have been in power so long that any outrage is not considered by them too great. The offices are looked upon as their property, and the people as their slaves to aid in giving them the spoils.—Indianapolis Journal.

State Rights and the Election of Chief Justice.

Translated from the Wisconsin Democrat.

A year ago we cautioned against making the State Rights doctrine a test in the Republican party. We believe this doctrine a dangerous one in its consequences, and a two-edged sword which may be used as well for slavery as for liberty. The Republicans at the North claim State Rights, or the power of the State, as a shield against the usurpation of the Federal power. The Democrats and the Southern slaveholders also claim State Rights as a shield for their slavery interest.

Of late the Postmaster General, on the strength of this State Rights doctrine, has violated the most important and sacred right guaranteed by the Federal Constitution, namely: the liberty of the press, by placing the laws of Virginia—prohibiting and punishing the circulation of anti-slavery documents and papers—as a State Rights doctrine over the Constitution.

No body can deny that this State Rights doctrine has made slavery the ruling power in the Union; and that the South on the strength of this doctrine, justifies every violence against life, liberty and property. We hear every day that men who believe slavery to be an evil, are tarred and feathered, lynched and expelled. Rights guaranteed to every man by the Federal Constitution are annihilated, because of this doctrine. For the Judges and the Federal officers, in justification of all those deeds of infamy, retreat behind those very State Rights.

And when the South, Shylock-like interprets the Federal constitution, so as to usurp all the power by this doctrine of State Rights and declares, as some of the legislators of the Southern States have done, that they have a right to import negroes from the coast of Africa; and when the Federal power, the Federal Courts, the Federal officers, as servants of the South, do homage to this cursed Southern State Rights doctrine, must we not come to the conclusion that this doctrine, instead of being a shield for liberty, becomes, in the hands of our powerful adversaries, the means to destroy the life, personal liberty and property, and an enemy to all free assemblies, free speech, and freedom of the press.

On the other hand, we soon expect to elect a Republican President and a Republican Congress, and before long to establish a Republican Federal Court, having possession of the legislative, judicial and executive power, which will wield full constitutional liberty, and give us the blessings of liberty at the North as well as at the South. If, then, the Southern States, in consequence of State Rights, claim, as a last resort, the right to decide in what way constitutional rights may be nullified in their States, or violations of constitutional rights may be sanctioned, then our Northern State Rights men will come to the conclusion, that the Federal Court is the competent and proper authority, to appeal against Southern decisions, given by, and in consequence of State Rights. Now, L. S. Dixon, Chief Justice of Wisconsin, replies to the United States Court the right of final appellation. To us it seems very natural that the States, in making a constitution for their Union, and instituting a United States Court, held said Court competent to decide questions arising under the Federal Constitution, or under United States laws as a last resort.

This States Rights question is again on the tapis in Wisconsin. Mr. Dixon, a Republican, but an anti-State Rights man, and Mr. Smith, a State Rights man, are candidates for Chief Justice for the State of Wisconsin, at the next April election. Some are trying to make political capital against Mr. Dixon, from the fact that many Democrats will vote for him. We consider this unjust. In our opinion we have to decide much more important questions, this year. Instead of dividing our strength in such inferior questions, we ought to prepare for the Presidential contest next fall.

SENATOR TOOMBS AS A HISTORIAN.—In his speech in the Senate the other day, Senator Toombs, of Georgia, stated that Virginia "had borne the burden of the revolutionary war." We are afraid that the Senator has read history to little purpose, or that he is not an honest witness. We do not wish to detract at all from the merit due Virginia, but we think she should not claim all the merit. The following statement of the number of troops furnished by the original thirteen States was made officially to Congress some years subsequent to the adoption of the Constitution, and is entered as a historical fact in all the publications relative to that contest. It may be found on the 441st page, vol. 3, of Hildreth's History of the United States, in Sparke's Washington, and also in the Journals of Congress. The statement is as follows:

Northern States.		Southern States.
N. Hampshire	12,497	Maryland	26,254
Massachusetts	15,572	Delaware	2,386
Connecticut	17,927	Virginia	12,866
Rhode Island	2,008	N. Carolina	5,942
New York	3,857	S. Carolina	6,417
New Jersey	6,726	Georgia	2,670
Pennsylvania	12,634
	67,766		56,535
			124,301
			48,135
			172,436

In order to make the statement more complete and full, we append the population of the States at the time of taking the first census, in 1790:

Northern States.		Southern States.
N. Hampshire	70,040	Maryland	107,254
Massachusetts	182,673	Delaware	59,096
Connecticut	119,019	Virginia	227,660
Rhode Island	68,611	N. Carolina	147,494
Vermont	85,341	S. Carolina	76,258
New York	161,882	Georgia	27,147
New Jersey	88,671
Pennsylvania	117,786		606,185
	867,766

It will be seen by the foregoing statements, that while Virginia had the largest population of any of the States, both Massachusetts and Connecticut overtopped her in the number of troops furnished during the war, and that Massachusetts furnished more troops than all the Southern States combined.—Peoria (Ill.) Transcript.

NEAL DOW NOT A BACKSLIDER.—The following letter from Neal Dow and extract from the Portland Advertiser, utterly refutes the story which has been going the rounds of the papers, and which has found its way into our columns, that he had fallen from the principles and practice of total abstinence.—Albany Argus.

PORTLAND, Jan. 24, 1860.

HON. BRADFORD R. WOOD—Dear Sir:—I have just received a copy of the Albany Atlas & Argus from you, with a paragraph marked in it, as follows: "The New London Star says that Neal Dow, of Portland, the father of the 'Maine Law,' has become enslaved by the habit which it has been of late the effort of his life, publicly, to reform."

I have noticed similar articles in various papers for a week or two past, which have been copied into papers in this State with such terms of ridicule as the editors thought proper to employ; but for myself, I have not given them a second thought, as I supposed they could not do me any mischief. But since your interest in the matter has led you to inquire into the truth of the report, it is proper I should take notice of it.

The paragraph marked by you had its origin probably in the circumstance, that I had a dangerous fall some three or four weeks ago, exaggerated details of which got into the papers and went the rounds. These editors, seeing the word "fall" connected with my name, inferred that it might be a fall from temperance, rectitude and truth—and either in mistake, malice, or just set afloat in their columns the paragraph to which I allude, one of which appeared in the New London Star.

I need hardly assure you, personally, that the imputation is without the slightest foundation. I became a teetotaller in early life, and have remained so unwaveringly to the present moment, and was never more of a temperance man theoretically and practically, and a Maine law man, than now.

I thank you for affording me the opportunity of making this declaration, which ought to be made known, perhaps, in other States, but which at home, here in Maine, is wholly unnecessary. Very respectfully yours,
NEAL DOW.

THE SOUTH AMERICAN CAPTURE!—The twenty or so South Americans in Congress, accomplished a feat on Friday last, which nearly rivals that of Old Brown, in the capture of Harper's Ferry, and the terrible scare of the entire State of Virginia. For nearly two months the Democrats in Congress—numbering nearly one hundred men—have been maneuvering to surround and capture the South Americans. They have nominated and dropped candidate after candidate, with a view to entrap them, but the wary "Natives" were on the alert, and finally succeeded in drawing the Democracy into the very trap into which they had been trying to lure the South Americans. It was a rare sight to see John Cochrene, Barr, and others of this State and in the West, who would have been defeated by thousands but for the votes of Irishmen, voting for a Know Nothing for Speaker, and falsely proclaiming that Mr. Smith disavowed Americanism! Sham Democracy has, indeed, sunk below contempt, when nearly one hundred of its picked champions surrender to one-fifth of their number of Know Nothings!—Rochester Democrat.

A YOUNG LADY three years old, being told by her mother to pick up her handkerchief, replied:

"Indeed I won't! just do it yourself!"

"Mollie," says the mother, "who are you talking to?"

"I was just making believe," replied our little miss, "you was Aunty Brown."

A PERSON speaking of a drink he once had occasion to indulge in, says he could not tell whether it was a brandy or a torchlight procession that was going down his throat.

I AM CERTAIN, madam, that I am right, and that you are wrong, I'll bet my ears upon it." "Indeed, sir, you shouldn't' carry betting to such extreme lengths!"

Reminiscence of Hon. William Pennington and Henry Clay.

Correspondence Cincinnati Commercial.

LEXINGTON, Feb. 1, 1860.

EDS. COM.—Perhaps it would interest some of your readers to know why the election of Pennington, of New Jersey, as Speaker, gave such general satisfaction in Lexington. I think it was either in 1845 or 1846 that Henry Clay became embarrassed to such an extent that he had to mortgage Ashland. In the meantime, a movement had been started in New Orleans by some of Mr. Clay's friends, that they would pay his debts and relieve him from his embarrassments, and Mr. A. H. Trotter, the agent of the Northern Bank in New Orleans, was sent East to confer with Mr. Clay's friends. The consequence was that about fifty thousand dollars were subscribed, and the Hon. Wm. Pennington was sent to Kentucky with the money, and came to Lexington without scarcely any person knowing him. He walked into the Northern Bank, asked for Mr. Scott, the Cashier of the Bank, and upon being shown that gentleman, asked if there were not several notes of Mr. Clay's that were due in a few days, and was answered that there were. Mr. Scott was requested to give the whole amount of Mr. Clay's indebtedness, which was done, and a draft on one of the New York banks was handed him, and Mr. Pennington left the bank with all Mr. Clay's notes paid. In a few days Mr. Clay came to town to arrange for a renewal of the notes if possible, and was shown in the side room of the bank. After sitting a few minutes he asked Mr. Scott if there could be any arrangement to run the notes for a longer time. Mr. Scott looked at Mr. Clay to see if he was not jesting, and finding that he was not, told him that a gentleman from New Jersey had called yesterday and paid all of his indebtedness. Mr. Clay started when Mr. Scott spoke, looked at him a few seconds, burst into tears, and left the bank overwhelmed. No man ever had such friends. Such, sir, is a brief narrative, an incident in the life of the Speaker elect; and here, sir, where Mr. Clay lived, his personal friends are rejoiced that he has been honored with the Speakership.

Winterlug Cows.

Almost every family, especially in the country and the smaller towns, keep one or more cows for the purpose of supplying themselves with milk or butter—both articles of prime necessity with every housekeeper. In this paper we shall not speak of the care and management of large dairies but rather of cases like those above indicated, where their owners do not often study that close economy in feeding their cows, and in the disposal of their products, which may be very profitably given in large establishments. But everywhere, those who would have milk in winter must not forget that succulent and nutritious food is needed to keep up its flow. But slight dependence can be had on dry fodder alone, unless it be first rate, both in character and quality.

Milch cows should be stabled, especially at night and in stormy weather. This is too frequently neglected, the milch cow receiving no better care than those not in milk, or the young stock of the farmer. This is a mistaken policy, if milk is desired. And from good cows, well fed and cared for, it is more valuable than at any other season of the year. Good butter can be made, and commands a better price than at any other season. It will pay for one cow or for scores, to keep them sheltered and comfortable, all their wants as fully supplied as circumstances will allow.

A proper and convenient supply of water is of much importance. No animal, and no milch cow especially, should be compelled to wander off in the bleak, cold storm to some pond or spring-hole for drink, but should have it supplied at or near the yard if possible. When there is a difficulty in getting water, cattle are apt to drink too much at a time, and such cows decrease in milk from such painful distention of the stomach with ice cold water. Many dairymen find it profitable to warm the water given their cows and other animals in the winter.

Good hay may well form a part of the winter feed of cows, but they need more food in order to give a good supply of rich milk. Carrot and other root crops, also pumpkins and apples, promote the flow of milk and the health and thrift of the animal. Where these cannot be had, the coarser grains ground and mixed with chopped hay or straw, or cornstalks, may be fed to cows, or they may be employed in connection with the articles first named.

An occasional change of food is much relished by cows as well as other stock, and promotes both health and appetite. Oats and barley, or oats and corn, or buckwheat, or rye, form a good provender of meal for this purpose. Corn meal alone has a tendency to dry off the milk—its greatest value is for fattening rather than milk-making purposes. Give cows what good hay and well cared corn fodder they will fully dispose of, and a peck or so of shorts and provender properly wet or seasoned with a little salt, and they will continue in milk as long as though roots were given them, and yield milk of a richer character.

Regularity, both in feeding and milking, is necessary to the comfort and thrift of the cow. Many, when their cows give but a small quantity, milk but once a day in winter. We cannot commend the practice, and would not follow it unless for the purpose of drying off our cows. It is true they give a less quantity in the night than in the morning, but milked regularly, the night's milking may be looked upon as so much extra to what would be obtained with milking once a day.—Country Gentleman.

NUTRITIVE QUALITIES OF SUGAR.—As by salts and acids, so by sugar and honey, is the quantity of the digestive juices increased, and the digestion promoted. And the sugar, while being disgested, enriches the gastric juice with a substance which assists in dissolving the aliments; for the sugar, in coming in contact with the saliva, has been partly transformed into lactic acid, which acts upon the alimentary principles in the same manner as does the hydrochloric acid of the gastric juice. For this reason, sugar at once appears actually better than its reputation.—But even to the present time, the popular belief that sugar injures the teeth is as widely spread as, on the counter testimony of both experience and science, the opposite doctrine ought to be. The teeth of the negroes of the West Indies—a community remarkable for the amount of sugar consumed among them—are of a bright white. Phosphate of lime is the chief constituent of the bones and teeth, but not before adult age; and an increase of the phosphate of lime is the essential characteristic of the developement of the bones of children. Lactic acid dissolves the phosphate of lime of the food, and as sugar indirectly supports this solution, it facilitates the conveyance of lime to the teeth. To this it may be objected that sugar causes pain in a hollow tooth; but, like sugar, a thousand other substances irritate the nerves. Sugar is not dangerous to the teeth, but, on the contrary, assists in providing them with lime; it is also useful to the stomach; if it does not, by heating taken in excess, produce too great a quantity of lactic acid.

THE FAT MAN FORGIVEN.—The fat man, with the broad, opaque back, who always sits before me in the theater, and interferes with my personal comfort in a public conveyance by becomes at times such an intolerable nuisance, that if I were to give way to the savage impulses of my nature, I should smite him down with the first destructive instrument at hand. A little reflection, a little communion with my better humanity, convinces me, however, that he is a far greater nuisance to himself than he is to those around him, and that I am not altogether guiltless of various little acts of an annoying character by which I irritate him, and deprive myself of the pure right of complaint. At the theatre, my sharp, attenuated knees painfully penetrate his yielding back; and in the omnibus, the hard, keen angles of my pocketbook, or my snuff-box, find a resting place in the soft substance of his incompressible sides. As I see him weltering in perspiring agony in the boiling cauldron of a crowded, unventilated stage-pit—in the close, musty depths of a public vehicle—or waddling as the butt and football of every hurrying passenger on the highway—my antagonism is disarmed, and I pass him tenderly, as I should one who was blind.

MOTHERS! MOTHERS!

DON'T FAIL TO PROCURE MRS. Winslow's Soothing Syrup for children teething. It has no equal on earth. It greatly facilitates the process of teething, by softening the gums, reducing inflamation—will allay all pain, and is sure to regulate the bowels. Depend upon it, mothers, it will give rest to yourselves, and relief and health to your infants. Perfectly safe in all cases.

This valuable preparation is the prescription of one of the most experienced and skillful Female Physicians in New England, and has been used with never failing success in millions of cases.

We believe it is the best and surest remedy in the world, in all cases of Dysentery and Diarrhœa in children, whether it arises from teething or any other cause.

If life and health can be estimated by dollars and cents, it is worth its weight in gold.

Millions of bottles are sold every year in the United States. It is an old and well tried remedy.

PRICE ONLY 25 CENTS A BOTTLE.

☞ None genuine unless the fac simile of CURTIS & PERKINS, New York, is on the outside wrapper.

Sold by Druggists throughout the world. Office No. 13 Cedar street, New York.

Sold in Milwaukee by John Rice. je15h194dw&twly

THE PUBLIC BLESSING WHICH IS now so universally admitted to existin Moffat's Life Pills and Phœnix Bitters, is every day demonstrated by their astonishing efficacy in the cases which they are announced to cure. All the complaints of the stomach and bowels, weakness of the digestive organs and of the system generally, bilious and liver affections, night fevers, head aches, piles costiveness, consumption, rheumatism, scurvy, impurity of the blood, or blotched and sallow complexions, soon yield to their curative properties. A single trial invariably secures them the title of the best family medicine now before the public. For sale by the proprietor, W. R. MOFFAT, at his office, 335 Broadway, and by Store Keepers and Druggists generally. oct18-362t1wawly

DECEMBER 28TH, 1859.

O dying year, didst wreck thy latest scoff
On those who reared with thee, bade thee go,
And parting, didst with palsied hand strike off,
The noblest name our Golden Book could show.
Vain spite! Self-branded thou shalt pass away,
Bearing his life whose fame was England's pride;
But through the ages English tongues shall say,
"That year" An ill one. Then Macaulay died."
—Punch, 7th January.

[Written expressly for the Daily Sentinel.]

TWENTY STEPS

TO ONE WOMAN'S HEART.

I immediately set John and the gardener to work on a new summer house, to stand on the edge of the "neutral ground," within a stone's throw of the Water Keeper's house—This was in accordance with a very ill-defined plan, and my little friend, Lotty, came and looked on with delight. I promised her a rare story when it should be finished, and she watched the progress made, with unfeigned interest. In two days we were very intimate. Lotty was an intelligent creature full of animal life, but affectionate, and pliable withal, and I liked her frank manner and natural exhuberance of mirth.—When the lattice work was all up, and the soil was dug to receive the wild brier, her father appeared for the first. With her usual impulsiveness, Lottie introduced him by saying—

"Pop this is Lem."

The old man shook hands with me in a cordial manner, as though it was a privilege he had long sought.

"That's a mighty pleasant location for that sort of a thing," he said, referring to the summer house, "but its a sort of unlucky place in the bargain."

"Unlucky," I repeated. "I do not understand you."

"Well you see there is an old story, that I heard from the Vantassel family—and they got it the Lord knows where—about a murder being committed hereabouts."

"Here comes one of his stories," I said to myself.

"It's a curious sort of a tale, and some afternoon I'd like to tell it you, when you get your house done."

I expressed my willingness to listen to his narration, and a hope flashed through my mind that perhaps Blanche would listen to it also.

The day after this, Chartsey returned, and to my amazement brought Mary with him. They came up the avenue together, laughing and talking in a very intimate manner, and it was with difficulty that I could persuade myself I saw aright. However, Chartsey quickly dispelled any doubts I might have as to the reality, by hailing me as I came out to meet them, and before he had reached the house.

"An unexpected addition, Lem! The prodigal daughter or sister returning to her brother; that's something out of the ordinary way; isn't it. Come down, you are expected to do the embracing."

He immediately added, seeing me stand astonished—

"There's nothing happened; everything is unruffled, serene, propitious. Mary's countenance will endorse all I say; look at it."

After the preliminary ejaculations had all been gone through with, I asked her to explain her appearance.

"It is easily explained," she answered.—Father met with an old medical friend in Boston, who prevailed upon him to change his route to California, and he would not hear of my accompanying him. Is that succinct enough?"

"It is entirely too small a statement for so momentous a circumstance. If it was'nt for the pleasure of having you back again, I should say something severe."

"Oh, it's just as well Lem. I have plenty to tell you, but you must have patience. I am too tired at present to go over my travels again. Your uncle burthened me with a heavy message, which I have to deliver specially."

Hero Merlin insisted on taking charge of Mary, and Chartsey beckoned me to come out on the verandah.

"Lem," he said, "I have always set it down as a rule, that misfortunes go in packs like wolves. I have always encountered them as I would a shower, knowing that there is no such a thing as a single drop. But this visit of mine to the city has been so balanced by good and bad fortune that it forms an exception to all the episodes of my life. In the first place, I encountered Miss Dolly Snig, of course—as though she had been lying in wait for me at all the depots and docks. I tried to be indifferent to her, but she treated my coolness with indifference. I plead a hundred instantaneous engagements, that demanded my attention, but she deluged her eyes with love and sorrow—right there in the street—drew out a little cambric to absorb the overflow, and I had to consent to listen out of very horror of a scene. Think of it, Lem! There was that compressed piece of womanhood, decked out with as many colors as a ship on the Fourth of July, making a focus of observation of me on the highway. I had to let her slip her arm through mine and hang herself to my side. I actually had to accompany her to her house, and instead of escaping at the front door, had to go in.—Then I said: 'Really, my dear maiden, my time is so precious that I shall have to tear myself away,' "—and she said—"I'd like to see you, you rover; can't I have a little of your society now-a-days? I suppose you think you will have enough of it bye-and-bye." Then she turned her head as if she had a blush to hide—"It's just like all you men, gay deceivers, every one of you."

"Miss Snig," I said solemnly, "I am tied to a necessity which is in another part of town. Inexorable duty forbids me enjoying the moments with you at present."

"Don't talk to me of duty and necessity. I claim all your duty, and necessities ought to be quenched in the light of my countenance, (a monstrous effort to look naively.) Come in, I want to introduce you to my mother and step-sister; they're living with me now, and are anxious to see you."

"Woman," I said majestically, "I don't understand you. You are deceiving yourself and me; I tear myself away from you. Adios;" and I performed the front steps a la Putnam, leaving Dolly in the doorway, feeling for her cambric with which to dam up the visual inundation. Shortly after, I met that infernal Tender at the Astor House.—He said he had heard of my 'ten strike' on the Avenue, referring to the rumor of my having been made captive by Dolly; and I informed him theatrically that in all probability he would hear of another strike if he alluded to the subject again; an answer, to use his own ornate phraseology, that 'struck him all of a heap.' I went to the bar and ordered a glass of mint julep without any mint, just to strengthen my nerves, for I knew what to expect when the pack of misfortunes opened.

Not fifteen minutes afterwards, that gentlemanly friend and collector, Gatherum, poked a bill in my face for fifty dollars. Gatherum knows how to deal with h man nature; he didn't threaten to prosecut or sue; none of that stuff. He said, "her's that account, I wan't the money in twenty-five minutes." I answered him, "Wait until I take another julep without any mint, and I'll talk with you." He waited with his watch in his hand.

During the deglutition of that julep, I resolved to defy, rather than conciliate him, but it was no use. Gatherum held his watch in his hand, and raised his voice by degrees, giving me the idea that unless I made a favorable proposition, he would say something disagreeable, loud enough for all the house to hear it.

THE SENTINEL.

COMMERCIAL.

MONDAY EVENING, February 6th, 1860.

Money Matters.

The principal feature in commercial circles to-day was an unusual scarcity of Currency, the banks and brokers having comparatively little to loan, and some of the best offerings for discount were refused. As a natural consequence Exchange was dull and heavy at the current rates, which are: Buying 1¾ premium for sight drafts; selling 2 premium. The banks were not anxious to purchase to any extent, and some parties sold on the street at 1¾ per cent. premium.

MILWAUKEE & MISSISSIPPI RAIL ROAD.—The following are the total earnings of this road for the month of January this year as compared with the corresponding month in 1859:

	1860.	1859.
Freight	$23,447 40	$24,996 60
Passengers	9,429 41	12,929 67
Mails and Rents	4,885 42	2,854 15
Total	$37,212 23	$39,780 42

Considering the light movement of produce in January this year, the showing is by no means an unfavorable one

NEW YORK BANK STATEMENT.—The statement of the New York Banks for the week ending to-day, as reported by telegraph, shows the following change:

Increase in loans	$10,638,876
Decrease in specie	154,478
Increase in circulation	418,889
Increase in deposits	962,102

Commercial.

Receipts by Railroad for the 24 hours ending noon to-day include:

Flour, bbls	593	Hides, No	466
Wheat, bus	10,457	Butter, lbs	865
Oats, bus	980	Poultry, lbs	260
Barley, bus	633	Rags, lbs	5,290
Corn, bus	90	Sundries, lbs	5,716
Corn, ears	60	Dressed hogs, No	83
Grass seed, lbs	200	Cattle, head	19

The scarcity of currency restricted operations in the wheat market to-day, and the cash sales were light.—A strong speculative feeling existed, however, and there were transactions in No. 1 Spring to the extent of some 1,500 bus for delivery in 30 and 60 days at $1. The market for No. 1 on track opened at Saturday's prices, and about 1,000 bus sold early at 98c, part on track, and part delivered. Later, the Bull influence predominated, and an advance of 1c was obtained, several car loads selling at 99c at Kellogg & Storrs's Elevator. Extra was extremely dull, and the outside figure paid on change for this quality was $1. Coarse grains were dull and mostly lower. Some small sales of Oats were reported at the delivered. Ear corn went slowly at low, and a car load of No. 1 shelled sold at 32c.—Barley was dull as usual, but not quotably lower. Several hundred bushels No. 2 sold at 55c, and No. 1 could have been bought at 62½c, while 65c was probably the highest point that Extra would reach.

A small lot of prime country Extra flour was reported at $4.50 delivered, but no considerable quantity of as good a brand could have been bought at the same price.

We heard of no transactions in provisions. Prices nominally firm as quoted in our list.

Dressed hogs were very firm and some lots averaging under 200 lbs went as high as $6.25 per cwt. Sales of a few head of cattle are noted at $2 60@3.25 per cwt. live weight for common to good beeves.

CONSIGNEES.—In our table of shipments by the Milwaukee and Chicago Railroad for January, where it read 58 pounds (lbs) Hams and shoulders, it should have been that number of barrels (bbls)—a careless printer neglecting to correct the error in his proof. It is very strange that our contemporaries, the Wisconsin and News, should have made precisely the same mistake in their tables; but singular things will occur occasionally.

CHICAGO, Feb. 4th.—There was a pause in the provision market to-day, and the trade was quiet, but feelers continued firm, and many of them did not show any disposition to offer their stock at even previous figures. There was a falling off in orders, however, and a general offishness on the part of buyers.—We heard of no sales of mess pork, prices are nominally 17 37½@17 50. Contracts for bulk meats were scarce and nominal, few of shoulders and sides, and 50,000 lbs for short rib sides deliverable fifteen days hence, sold at 7c. Of these 168 bbls sold for the last half of this month at 6¾, and 6 9/16 for straights. Nothing transpired in lard. There was some demand for prime butter at 16c, but it was held at 18c. There was a continued good demand for flour, and a further advance of 10c was established in the lower grades, closing at 4 75@5 00 for superfine, and 5 30@6 00 for extra.

The receipts were large, but this had no effect upon the market. Wheat was sought after at full prices, the receipts being inadequate to the demand. Rejected to be declared to be shelled, which is wanted for shipment, was in good demand at 55c. Oats were slightly easier closing at 28@29c in bulk.—Gazette.

NEW YORK COMMERCIAL MATTERS.—The stock of coffee in New York on the 1st inst., was 45,141 bags, and 26,332 mats. The stock of sugars at the same time, compare as follows:

The Great Secret at Last Discovered!!

JUNIUS JUDSON,
PATENTEE AND MANUFACTURER OF
JUDSON'S PATENT
GOVERNOR VALVES,
FOR REGULATING THE MOTION OF STEAM ENGINES,

WARRANTED THE MOST PERFECT Governor of Steam Power in the world, and like all really great inventions, the most simple. Manufactured by Judson & Bro., at Rochester, N. Y., 8 Solye Building, near R. R. Depot.

Shop Rights for sale.

CAUTION TO INFRINGERS.

Patents issued to the United States, Nov. 5th, 1858. Reissued, Jan. 4th, 1859. Second Patent, March 4th, 1851. Patented also in Great Britain and the Canadas, Jan. 1st, 1859.

This improvement consists in making regulating valves to open with a rapidly increasing ratio to the motion of the governor, from the motion made in the valve—or by accelerating the opening motion of the ordinary valve with the motion of the governor balls, or weights, commencing with accelerated valve motion. My patent Valves and Governors are so arranged as to open the valves (which may be single, double, or reversed of the engine), the power to open the valves just the exact amount of aperture necessary to counterbalance that resistance from the aperture, by the addition of equal amounts of resistance, notwithstanding that the action of the governor's centrifugal balls remains the same.

Therefore reverse the action of valves combined with governors, and the impossibility of this effect can be produced by many different mechanical devices, (apparently not similar, but really identical with my improvements), from the infringers have imposed upon the public. I therefore caution and request all persons interested in governors, to call and inspect improvements in valves or governors, & to see if the application of this trick or principle, fraudulently concealed, is not covered in their purchases or present machinery, or their practical depredations.

Spalding's Prepared Glue!
A Stitch in Time saves Nine.
ECONOMY!
Dispatch!
Save the Pieces!

AS ACCIDENTS WILL HAPPEN EVEN to well regulated families, it is very desirable to have some clean and convenient way for repairing Furniture, Crockery, Toys, &c.

SPALDING'S PREPARED GLUE

Meets all emergencies, and no household can afford to be without it. It is ready for instant use at all stitching points. There is no longer a necessity for limping chairs, splintered vases, headless dolls and broken cradles. It is just the article for some shelf and ornamental work, so popular with ladies of refinement and taste.

This admirable preparation is used cold, being chemically held in solution, and possessing all the chemically held in solution, and possessing all the valuable qualities of the best cabinet maker's glue. It may be used in the place of ordinary mucilage, being vastly more adhesive.
